When you work in health care, what you wear to work can affect your performance all day—for better or worse. While Saint Elizabeth Health Care (a not-for-profit and charitable health services provider) was in the process of implementing a new uniform requirement policy for front-line staff, they reached out to George Brown College to help understand the needs, preferences and problems staff experienced with the current uniforms so that a team of design students could reimagine a new fit.